MTE 8106 Advanced Topics in Communications Engineering

AIM:

The course is intended to discuss advanced concepts relating to communications systems and networks. It also discusses recent advances in research in communications and signal processing both within and outside Makerere University.

Detailed Course Content:

Details of the course including content and delivery systems will be determined during any semester in which the course is offered and by the professor(s) that will be taking the course.